Shaping the Leaders of a Global Tomorrow

At the Faculty of Global Leadership, you'll embark on an intensive journey designed to prepare you for the complexities of leadership in an increasingly interconnected and diverse world. Over the course of two weeks, this programme offers a deep dive into international relations, global economics, and leadership theory, providing you with the tools to navigate and influence the global landscape.

The curriculum is focused on both the theoretical and practical aspects of global leadership. You'll explore critical topics such as diplomacy, international policy, and cross-cultural communication, gaining a nuanced understanding of how global systems operate and how leaders can effect change within them. Through case studies and strategic simulations, you'll learn to analyze global issues, develop solutions, and understand the impact of your decisions on a worldwide scale.

One of the defining features of the Faculty of Global Leadership is its emphasis on experiential learning. You'll participate in model United Nations sessions, diplomatic negotiations, and leadership workshops that simulate real-world scenarios. These experiences are designed to enhance your ability to think strategically, negotiate effectively, and lead diverse teams in high-pressure environments.

Collaboration and cultural competence are at the heart of this programme. You'll work alongside peers from different backgrounds, gaining insights into various cultures and perspectives that will enrich your understanding of global leadership. This collaborative environment not only broadens your worldview but also hones your ability to lead in diverse settings.

Studying at the Faculty of Global Leadership is more than an academic pursuit; it's a transformative experience that prepares you to become a leader who can make a meaningful impact on the world. Whether you aim to work in international organizations, government, or global business, this programme equips you with the knowledge, skills, and mindset necessary to lead in a complex, globalized world.

Course Objectives

By the end of this course, you will have a deep understanding of political systems, international relations theories, and economic principles. You will develop the analytical skills necessary to evaluate global issues, craft policy recommendations, and lead effectively in diverse environments. This course is ideal for students interested in pursuing careers in politics, diplomacy, international organisations, or leadership roles in any field.

Module 1

Foundations of Political Theory and Governance

Explore key concepts and ideologies in political theory, examining various forms of government, the role of institutions, and the influence of political ideologies on policy-making, with an analysis of different political systems through case studies and discussions.

Module 2

International Relations and Global Diplomacy

Study international relations with an emphasis on diplomacy and global conflict resolution, covering major theories, the role of international organisations, and global power dynamics, while analysing case studies of diplomatic negotiations and strategies for maintaining peace and security.

Module 3

Economics and Public Policy

Investigate the intersection of economics and politics, focusing on how economic principles shape public policy, including topics like economic growth, fiscal policy, and international trade, with practical exercises in applying economic theories to address real-world issues.

Previous projects include:

Project 1: "Designing a Sustainable Development Strategy for Emerging Economies" – A policy proposal aimed at promoting economic growth while addressing social and environmental challenges in developing countries.

Project 2: "Analysing the Impact of Global Trade Policies on National Economies" – A comparative study of trade agreements and their effects on economic stability and growth.

Time to Shine

For your Time to Shine project, you will undertake an extended research project that integrates politics, international relations, and economics. This project will culminate in a presentation where you will propose policy solutions or strategic initiatives.

Industry Experience

Experience the world of politics and international relations first-hand through our industry experience sessions. You will have the opportunity to visit a governmental organisation, think tank, or international NGO, where you can observe policy-making processes, engage with professionals, and gain insights into the practical aspects of leadership and diplomacy.

Guest Speakers

Our programme includes guest lectures from prominent political leaders, diplomats, and economists. These speakers will share their insights into the challenges and opportunities in global leadership, discuss current events, and offer advice on building a successful career in politics, international relations, or economics.

Academic Coaching

Throughout the course, you will receive personalised academic coaching to support your intellectual and personal growth. Our experienced tutors will provide feedback on your projects, help you refine your critical thinking and analytical skills, and guide you in developing the leadership qualities necessary for success in the complex world of global politics and economics.
